Training Course at the Department of Philosophy on the Quality of Education

From 18 to 21 September 2025, the Department of Philosophy organized an extensive training course entitled “Quality of Education and Tools for Its Improvement,” with the participation of members of the various committees of the College of Arts.

The course addressed key themes including quality assurance standards, academic leadership, examination procedures, university media, academic and psychological counseling, as well as the integration of sustainable development concepts into university education.

The course aimed to enhance participants' competencies, promote a culture of quality, develop mechanisms for planning, leadership, and decision-making, ensure transparency in examinations, and strengthen university media and student counseling. It also produced recommendations intended to improve academic and administrative performance, representing an important step toward consolidating quality and advancing the work of the Department.

Activity Two: Department of Philosophy Marks World Psychological Counseling Day with a Distinguished Awareness Activity

The Department of Philosophy at the College of Arts, under the supervision of the Dean of the College, Professor Dr. Hatem Fahd Hano Al-Tai, organized an awareness activity on the occasion of World Psychological Counseling Day, with the aim of promoting awareness of the importance of psychological counseling and its role in supporting students' mental well-being.

The activity included the publication of informational and awareness posters on the concept and functions of psychological counseling, as well as a meeting of the Department's Counseling Committee with students from all academic stages. An awareness lecture introduced the University Psychological Counseling Unit, its responsibilities, and the role of the committee in following up students' psychological, social, and academic affairs.

The event witnessed positive interaction from students through constructive interventions and discussions that reflected their awareness of the importance of this aspect of university life.

Activity Three: University Psychological Counseling Unit at the College of Arts Organizes a Scientific Seminar on the International Day for Preventing Violent Extremism

The University Psychological Counseling Unit at the College of Arts organized a scientific seminar in celebration of the International Day for Preventing Violent Extremism, entitled: "Together for Peace: Strengthening Community Awareness to Confront Violent Extremism," emphasizing the role of educational institutions, universities, and their colleges in consolidating the values of peace and protecting society from extremist thought and behavior.

The seminar included scientific presentations by the Dean of the College of Arts, Professor Dr. Hatem Fahd Hano; Professor Dr. Khalil Mohammed Hussein; and Assistant Professor Dr. Hijran Abd Al-Ilah Ahmed. The session was chaired by Dr. Iman Hammadi Rajab, Head of the University Psychological Counseling Unit.

The seminar featured active dialogue and interventions from attendees that enriched the discussion and presented constructive ideas promoting a culture of peace and tolerance and supporting societal efforts to confront manifestations of violent extremism.
