Outcomes of required program and methods of teaching, learning, and assessment.

Cognitive Objectives:

1- Acquire knowledge and understanding of the concepts of acting, directing, voice acting, as well as theatrical costumes, lighting, set design, and makeup.

2- Prepare educational staff for the Ministry of Education and other related ministries, such as the Ministry of Culture, public institutions, and media units.

Methods of Assessment

The educational activities and assessments in the Department of Theatrical Arts include:

- Small research projects.
- Study circles.
- Academic discussions.
- Oral dialogues.
- Daily, midterm, and final examinations.
- Homework assignments.
- Writing and presenting regular and weekly practical reports.
- Watching and analyzing scientific, Arabic, and local theatrical performances.
- Developing critical thinking skills.
- Presenting global and research-related issues to encourage students to think about possible solutions.
- Encouraging the development of scientific and research skills and motivating students to engage in critical thinking before moving on to practical aspects.
- Examinations aimed at motivating students towards further study and increasing their scientific and technical knowledge.

Methods of teaching and learning

- Achieving these objectives is done through theoretical and oral testing of students and classroom and laboratory activities that expose them to previous works and experiments.
- Presenting a case study or graduation project, where students provide a description including factual and artistic information about a specific problem, and they are asked to critique some performances or theatrical texts, diagnose the problem, and describe the correct scientific solution to stimulate students' motivation to respond.
- Field information is obtained during summer training, as well as behavioral observations during the training period. Modern techniques and workshops are encouraged to present and address a problem. Students are asked to process, improve, or develop it, and they are also encouraged to take notes and engage in scheduled comparisons, for example.
- The graduation project requires students to analyze some performances or theatrical texts, diagnose the problem, and describe the correct scientific solution to stimulate students' motivation to respond.
