

Authored and Translated Books

Due to the recent establishment of the Department of Renewable Energy and the current absence of faculty members specialized specifically in this field — as most of the academic staff come from physics and chemistry backgrounds — there have been no authored or translated scientific books in renewable energy to date. The department aspires to enhance its academic and research capabilities in the future by encouraging the development of specialized scientific content.

