

Postgraduate studies

The Department of New and Renewable Energy currently offers undergraduate studies only. However, there is a strong intention to establish postgraduate programs in the near future, aiming to expand research opportunities and further develop expertise in the field of renewable and sustainable energy technologies.

